

Nation Faces Dark Future; Millions Soon Will Be Idle

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP)—Henry J. Kaiser, west coast steel operator, today accepted President Truman's proposed compromise in the steel wage dispute and signed a contract with the CIO Steelworkers.

(By The Associated Press)

Fires in the huge blast furnaces in the nation's steel mills burned slowly today and the last flame of hope of halting a strike of 750,000 CIO steelworkers flickered feebly.

The strike against the country's basic industry officially was scheduled to start at 12:01 a. m. Monday, but already operations were being curtailed and workers laid off in some plants.

Hope of averting the walkout, which if fully effective would be one of the biggest, if not the biggest, in the nation's history, faded yesterday. President Truman's compromise proposal for settling the wage dispute, accepted by CIO President Philip Murray, was rejected by Benjamin F. Fairless, U. S. Steel corporation president.

The strike, originally scheduled to begin January 14, "must take place," said Murray, indicating that the 750,000 members of the CIO United Steelworkers union which he heads will remain away from their jobs in 1,300 steel, aluminum and fabricating plants.

No U. S. Seizure
There appeared no White House plans to stop the walkout and government seizure of the plants was not contemplated.

The only possible avenue opened for averting the scheduled strike was reconsideration of Mr. Truman's wage proposal of 18½ cents an hour by Fairless. He was asked to reconsider but few government officials or others believed that "Big Steel" would alter its position.

As the steel strike-hour neared, there were no immediate indications that other top-ranking disputes were near settlement.

The paralyzing strike of some 263,000 CIO and AFL workers in the meat industry continued for the fourth day as meat supplies across the country became more scarce. Federal conciliators kept on trying to effect an agreement between the unions and packers in their wage dispute while a fact-finding board was to open public hearings in Chicago Tuesday.

200,000 Others Idle
In another huge strike, involving 200,000 CIO electrical workers against General Electric, Westinghouse and General Motors, there likewise was no progress reported.

The walkout started Tuesday after a breakdown in wage negotiations. As the steel strike neared, the Civilian Production Administration in Washington said that in event of a general walkout, a program of voluntary rationing of steel supplies would be put into effect. This would protect "essential needs" such as emergency repairs and maintenance required by hospitals, transportation, public utilities, food processing, police and fire departments and public health and safety.

Across the country, some other strikes were marked by disturbances while new threats of walkouts tended to further darken the gloomy labor scene.

Threat In Gotham

In New York city, a strike of 32,000 CIO transport workers was threatened, which would disrupt all city-owned subways, buses, trolleys and elevated trains. The union said the strike, if called, would be in protest against a proposal to sell city-owned plants to Consolidated Edison company, largest utility in the New York area.

In Akron, O., the CIO United Rubber Workers Local at Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., approved a strike by a more than 10 to 1 margin in a vote among its 11,000 members. The vote was 5,935 to 565, said local union president I. H. Watson. Company and union representatives of 12 Firestone branches will meet in Chicago Feb. 19 to negotiate on union wage demands.

High Wind Damages Utility Line Poles

A wind that hit almost gale proportions this morning about 1:30 o'clock tore down several telephone and electric light poles and sent night men scurrying to tie down lines and anything that was loose but apparently did little other damage.

The gusts of wind knocked out three poles of the telephone company along the Orrtanna-Fairfield road, near Fairfield but crews from the company had restored service by mid-morning. The electric power company reported that two poles were blown down near Guernsey, but that the current was not cut off at any time in that area. The Adams County electric cooperative however said it had suffered no damage from the storm.

Weather Forecast

J. E. KING, HEAD OF WAR MAPPING WORK, HONORED

Before a gathering of more than a thousand persons at the dinner session of the annual meeting of the American Society of Photogrammetry Thursday evening in the Willard hotel in Washington, D. C., J. E. "Jack" King, Gettysburg, project engineer of the U. S. Department of Agriculture Forest Service, received the Fairchild Award for 1945, one of two awards presented at that meeting.

Mr. King, head of the Navy War Mapping project at the Lee-Meade inn that did photogrammetric work for invasion maps for the navy in their sweep across the Pacific, was honored for professional developments he has perfected, most of them while working here.

The entire War Mapping staff from Gettysburg was on hand to see their chief receive a handsome plaque on which his name has been inscribed.

Improved Maps and Methods

The presentation was made by Philip G. McCurdy, a civilian serving in the Navy department, winner of the award a year ago. He saluted Mr. King as a man who is "not only capable of great production but also is constantly thinking and searching for ways to improve the work of his profession, thus inspiring co-workers to new achievements."

Special mention was made of the five patents Mr. King has had registered for improving photo-mapping since he became interested in aerial surveying in 1929. He has engaged in the mapping profession since 1917. Two of his five patents "were given to the federal government to be used by one of its agencies and three were dedicated to the free use of the people of the United States," Mr. McCurdy declared.

King's new methods of handling terrestrial photography have applied new techniques to old principles. While reducing the time and cost elements in map production, he has improved the quality of the maps at the same time, the audience was told. McCurdy concluded with a tribute to King's "outstanding efforts and unselfish devotion to duty."

Praises Associates
In his brief acceptance speech Mr. King expressed his appreciation of the "whole-hearted cooperation of the U. S. Forest Service and my associates, E. R. Sievers, P. B. Kail, J. W. Elliott, H. C. Cain and F. D. Williams, which has made possible the development and improvements accomplished thus far."

He also gave recognition to the "moral support and full cooperation of Messrs. T. W. Norcross, E. S. Massie, R. M. Wilson and K. T. Adams. Mr. King is a charter member of the Photogrammetry society which was formed in 1934.

The Forest Service had a display of its equipment on exhibition at the society's meeting place in the Willard and included in the display most of the special equipment developed here in the Navy mapping work.

The three-day meeting opened Wednesday evening. Speakers during the meeting discussed photogrammetry and the war, postwar plans, commercial and private photogrammetry in Europe, large scale industrial planning maps, aerial photography applied to geology, Canadian survey practice and German photogrammetry in the war. The sessions closed Friday afternoon.

Approved grants to date amount to $348,856.67 and represent work estimated to cost $71,548,399.80. It is further estimated that the construction involved will provide 15,741 man-years of on-site employment and 5,112 man-years of off-site employment.

The empowering act requires that the appropriation be allocated to the counties on a population basis.

$3,983 ALLOTTED FOR PLANNING PUBLIC WORKS

Adams county has been allocated $3,983 under Act 413 of the 1945 General Assembly, for the planning and engineering of public works, but to date no applications have been filed for this state aid. The matter has been called to the attention of the office of the county school superintendent, and Dr. Robert A. Bream, assistant superintendent, said today only construction planned by schools in Adams county, so far as he knew, is at Biglerville.

The high school plans have been approved, Dr. Bream said. Nothing has thus far been done on the elementary school plans. Dr. Bream said that "there seems to be a need in other districts, but so far as we know, there has been no other planning except at Biglerville." The latter could probably be reimbursed on its engineering and planning costs, he said.

The General Assembly act empowers the Pennsylvania Post-War Planning Commission to make grants to political sub-divisions to cover up to 50 per cent of the planning and engineering cost of worthwhile public works. The main purpose of the act is to encourage construction of needed projects, thereby providing employment during the transition period.

The commission said that it had received 311 applications, and up to January 8, 66 grants had been approved, not including sewage treatment projects, which are being promoted by the Sanitary Water Board, or aviation programs, being handled by the Aeronautics commission. Approved grants to date amount to $348,856.67 and represent work estimated to cost $71,548,399.80. It is further estimated that the construction involved will provide 15,741 man-years of on-site employment and 5,112 man-years of off-site employment.

Red Cross Assists Stranded Gob, Family

A U. S. sailor, his wife and two children are convinced today that Adams countians are pretty nice people.

The sailor, who saw five years of service, both in the Atlantic and Pacific, was visiting in Florida with his parents while on rehabilitation leave. He, his wife and two children, 2½ years and four months of age, were driving back to New York where he is to report for duty. A few miles outside of Gettysburg a tire blew out, destroying the tire and halting the sailor who had only a few more hours to make the port of New York.

A tire was needed; money was needed for the tire so the sailor hitch-hiked into Gettysburg and found the Red Cross office. There Glenn Guise, former marine now a garageman, was contacted. Guise felt he could find a tire for the sailor. The Red Cross backed the sailor with money for the tire and the interrupted journey back to duty was continued.

SPANISH GIRLS NO LONGER NEED CHAPERONES

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (AP World Traveler)

Madrid, Jan. 19.—There is an old Spanish proverb that says a woman should be kept in the house with the door locked and one leg broken.

That's the way the boys here thought about it so far back as when I first came to Europe during World War One. But you ought to see the so-called "weaker sex" now! The girls have been cut loose from their Duenna's apron strings and are competing with the men fairly well all along the line.

Before going further I should explain that this really is Mrs. Mack's story. I had noted that the dark-eyed señoritas are easy to look at, for that's one of the things a professional observer would note. I hadn't thought much more about it—well, not very much more—but my diffident partner got interested in feminine activities and has rendered this report.

Long Distance Love

This is indeed a different world from what the mothers of the present generation knew. Stern custom kept the women and girls largely in their own homes. If an unmarried girl went out doors she was accompanied by her mother or her duenna (chaperone), an elderly but spry creature who was acquainted with the wild ways of wolves.

Marriages often were arranged by the parents of the couple as a matter of "convenience." If it was a love match, the courtship was conducted by remote control. The young man, having fallen in love with a beauty he saw walking in the park with her duenna, would follow at a respectful distance until she noticed him.

This might happen a number of times until finally the suitor would venture to write a note declaring his passion and might be rewarded by having his beloved speak to him from the balcony of her home.

This long distance love making might run along for two or three years after which the young man would ask the girl's parents for her hand in marriage. If his social and financial standing was all right, he might get his girl.

New World Influence

But having won his woman, the young man proceeded to lock her up in her new home, safe from the outside world. So the cycle of courtship and marriage went on from generation to generation, with considerably more formality among the aristocracy.

Not so today. The young hopeful takes his girl out to dinner and the theater or a dance, even as you and I. And they don't need a chaperone any more. To be sure, the more conservative families still stick to some of the old forms. For instance the current newspapers carry notices announcing that the parents of such and such young men have asked the parents of such and such young women for their hands in marriage. This notice is known as a "petition for hand" and is a formality which probably means that the young couple themselves have decided to get married.

Along with this has come the entrance of women into business and public life. They tell you here that this change has been due in great measure to acquaintance with the freedom of American women.

That's not the only way in which the new world has influenced Spain, for Madrid follows many of our styles in women's clothing, especially those emphasized by Hollywood films. The Spanish señoritas' makeup also is Hollywood.

ARMY TO "CAN" SURPLUS TANKS, OTHER WEAPONS

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP)—"Sergeant, open a can of guns."

That isn't so far-fetched as it sounds. The Army already has planned some surplus materials and tanks to do a whole lot more—including 90mm guns and tanks.

Faced with the problem of what to do with the 3,700,000 vehicles, 750,000 artillery pieces and 30,000,000 small arms left over from the war, Army Ordnance hit upon the idea of packaging the surplus in "containers" that would protect them from rust and dirt.

The Army Ordnance Association magazine Firepower describes the process as costing about five percent of the original cost of the weapon. That would be about $1,500 for a $30,000 tank—dirt cheap when you remember that an overhaul alone might run as high as $5,000.

Ordnance describes the packaging process as falling into two categories, short and long term. For short storage the weapon is packed with silica gel, which sucks moisture from the air, and then is sprayed with a plastic coating to protect it from the dirt and weather. When the weapon is needed the leather-like coating is peeled off.

Sealed With Nitrogen For long-term storage the weapon is placed in an air-tight steel can with silica gel trimmings inside. Air, which contains rust-causing oxygen, is sucked from the can and nitrogen is pumped in. Thus packaged, the weapon can be stored indefinitely.

Ordnance expects this development to make possible the storage of weapons in the various theaters where they might be called upon to be used. Money would be saved because large storehouses would not be necessary.

During the war much equipment, stored for only comparatively short periods, was lost to rust before it could be put into action against the enemy. This was especially true on some of the tropical islands of the Pacific.

An Ordnance spokesman said general service vehicles such as trucks would not be packaged because they become obsolete too quickly and long-term storage would be senseless. But tanks would be canned because there is little change in tank design in peacetime, principally because funds usually are not available for such expensive development.

More Funds Needed Although Ordnance has experimented with all types of packaging, large-scale operations will have to await the availability of funds.

Much credit for the development must go to Lt. Gen. Levin H. Campbell, Jr., chief of Ordnance. Twenty-five years ago Campbell, then a captain at Rock Island Arsenal, experimentally canned in oil. When World War II came along America began searching frantically for weapons to be shipped to England. Ordnance officers opened General Campbell's canned goods and found the mechanisms as good as new.

BLOODY RIOTING FLARES IN SEOUL DEMONSTRATION

By ROBERT MYERS

Seoul, Korea, Jan. 19 (AP)—Bloody rioting flared in Seoul today as right wing Koreans renewed demonstrations against Allied trusteeship for their country.

Two Koreans were killed and many were injured in an armed battle at dawn between civil police and more than 200 persons, said to be members of the Korean Students league which started the demonstrations.

More than 100 shots were fired as police sought to break up a demonstration at the rear of the governor general's palace, occupied by Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, American occupation commander, and his aides.

Americans Not Molested

Korean police, handling their first big job without assistance, arrested 119 Koreans. Americans were neither molested nor threatened during the sporadic outbursts, which began last night.

There were indications the demonstration was organized to impress the visiting Soviet delegates to the Russo-American trusteeship parley. Hodge demanded cessation of such activities in a radio appeal this afternoon.

Trouble began with a parade last night. Demonstrating student groups marched past the Russian consulate, U. S. 24th Army Corps headquarters and the Chosen hotel, headquarters of the Soviet and American leaders.

Banners and placards carried inscriptions denouncing trusteeship although no trusteeship yet has been established under terms of the recent Moscow pact and provisions for setting up such a trust are indefinite.

High Court Upholds Conviction Of Officer

Philadelphia, Jan. 19 (AP)—A policeman is guilty of manslaughter if he kills a fleeing suspect who is later exonerated, say the state superior court. The court upheld the manslaughter conviction of Stowe Township Police Chief William C. Duerr.

Duerr shot and killed Ralph Landefeld and Edward Shuler, whom Duerr said he suspected of being automobile thieves. Landefeld and Shuler later were exonerated.

"The right to kill an escaping offender," the court ruled yesterday, "is limited to cases in which the officer knows that the person whom he is seeking to arrest is a felon. And not an innocent party."

The Allegheny county court sentenced Duerr to two years' imprisonment.

Gambling Mars HS
Football In Texas

Austin, Tex., Jan. 19 (AP)—Texas schoolboy football, which last season experienced its greatest attendance in history—one game setting a record for the south—has found prosperity also breeds trouble.

The Texas Interscholastic league through its official publication termed gambling at high school football games "an even worse curse than drinking intoxicants" and said gambling was becoming organized on the "horse-racing plan."

Referring to the Brooklyn incident involving players on college basketball teams, the league paper said "many gamblers are not content to take a chance but insist on having a sure thing. Then money is put up to hire players to throw the game or to hire the score down to make certain gamblers safe." The editorial added that just one scandal of this kind would "blow up high school football in Texas."

Mechanicsburg Team Here Tonight

With a lineup studded with former college stars, the Mechanicsburg Naval Supply Depot quintet will attempt to end the six-game winning streak of the undefeated Gettysburg college team tonight when the teams clash on the college court at 8 o'clock.

Thursday evening Mechanicsburg whipped Lock Haven State Teachers' college 51-39 to add another victory to its impressive string. Henry, star center, landed 17 points. Bonner, former Notre Dame player, landed five points while in action as a guard.

Another huge crowd is anticipated tonight and extra seats have again been placed in the gym. Autos will be permitted to enter the campus only via the West Lincoln avenue entrance.

Richmond, Calif., Jan. 19 (AP)—Smiling Toney Penna, enjoying a three-stroke advantage gained from a sparkling streak of sub-par shooting, led a streamlined field into the third round of the 72-hole Richmond $10,000 open today with a 134 that was one stroke short of the competitive course record.

The little Dayton, Ohio, fellow with the smooth swing tossed a six-under-par score of 33-32-65 yesterday to vault from a second place tie into first position.

Chicago, Jan. 19 (AP)—The nation's top bowlers—there'll be 2,080 of them from 24 states in competition before the firing ends 18 days hence—today touch off the richest individual tournament of the country, the 34th annual Petersen classic which carries with it $52,000 in prizes.

Redding looped 10 points for the victors with McBeth tallying eight for Shippensburg.

GENE KELLY'S BROTHER ALSO DANCING STAR

By JACK O'BRIAN
New York Jan. 19 (AP)—Fred Kelly, talented dancing brother of Gene Kelly of the screen, is an active terpsichorean around here despite the fact that his brother's extravagant Hollywood success has taken attention away from his own agile and excellent terping. . . . He is expected to go into a Broadway show in the Spring . . . and meanwhile is tuning his toesies by appearing in a revival of "Babes in Toyland" over in New Jersey, at the Montclair Theater.

The Theater Guild has instituted a playwright seminar. . . . Nine playwrights have been invited, including several GI winners. . . . Membership will be confined to a limited number of youngsters whose dramatic literature convinced the dignified Theater Guild gang that they needed a bit of a shove along the rocky writing road.

Valerie Hobson, a British screen star who caused a ripple which ran across the Atlantic and somehow or other got to Hollywood, will make films here as soon as she finishes her Dickensian emoting in "Great Expectations."

"Lend-Lease" Plan
Miss Hobson's trip to this side is somewhat of a lend-lease arrangement. . . . A bright, sawed-off sprite named Kim Hunter, the first American starlet to go to England under a talent-swapping arrangement between British and American producers, arrived back here in New York the other day after finishing a film in London called "A Matter of Life and Death."

Kim didn't have too much to say about her British film experiences, except the usual "I loved it" attitude. . . . but she was volubly, definitely, almost hysterically glad to get back to these shores. . . . She was more interested in getting home than she was to get over in the first

LITTLESTOWN AND N. O. SPLIT

The Littlestown boys rolled to a 46-11 victory after getting off to a 15-0 lead in the first period. Crouse topped the individual scorers with 17 points.

In the preliminary game the New Oxford girls pulled a surprise by nosing out the Littlestown lassies 37-34. Seig and Little paced the winners with Crouse outstanding for Littlestown.

Littlestown will entertain the Quincy orphanage cagers at Littlestown Tuesday.

Bonneauville—Pvt. Bernard Kuhn of Ft. Knox, Ky., is spending two weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Kuhn. Seaman 2/c Paul Kuhn returned to Boston Tuesday after spending a 30-day furlough here.

T/3 Richard Weaver received a discharge at Indiantown Gap Wednesday and returned to his home here from the European theatre, where he served in the Paratroop division.

T/5 Bernard Chrismer, who spent 28 months in Europe, is visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Chrismer. Corporal Chrismer will return to Indiantown Gap Monday to receive his discharge.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sneeringer and Bernard Walter recently visited the former's daughter, Dolores, at Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia.

Professionally, Kim thinks David is a heck of a hunk of guy . . . but personally, this five-foot-three half-pint has her heart firmly pocketed by a fellow named Bill Baldwin, a Marine captain who is, in less travelsome moment, Kim's husband.

Kim got to her sudden international eminence by way of Detroit, where she was born Janet Cole . . . she doesn't remember much about Detroit, since she moved from there to Miami, when she was a youngster . . . and after a typical hard-work childhood and girlhood of practicing time-steps, back-flips, singing and dramatics, Kim finally caught the passing eye of a film director while playing stock in Baltimore. . . . This fellow suggested Hollywood might very well be ripe for her talents about just then, and she headed west and sure enough, Producer-agent David O. Selznick gave her the double-O-Selznick and signed her up. . . . She went forthwith to London to play the part of a "typical American girl."

This typical youngster is 23 years old and has a year-old baby . . . and, according to Mr. O'Selznick, a lot of talent. . . . Could be!

Vets On Strike To Get Temporary Jobs

Harrisburg, Jan. 19 (AP)—U. S. employment offices in Pennsylvania were under instructions today to refer world war two veterans forced out of work by strikes to temporary jobs if they request them.

State Director Florian J. Boland sent the orders to local USES offices to provide relief to veterans who are ineligible under federal and state laws for unemployment compensation when they are made idle by labor disputes.

The new policy, Boland said, is an exception to the employment service's long-standing rule of withholding referrals to persons involved in work stoppages.

Boland explained the policy of staying out of strike situations had been followed because "when a plant is struck referral of workers has a tendency of dissipating an employer's work force, while, contrary-wise, it might hurt a union by picking off the people most active in strikes."

Man Slays Woman And Self With Gun

Uniontown, Pa., Jan. 19 (AP)—Three bullets from the same gun yesterday ended the life of a state highway worker and that of a 20-year-old housewife while the woman's children, little girls aged 4 and 2, looked on in speechless terror.

Deputy Coroner Andrew Haky said Clarence Murphy, 32, pumped two bullets into the body of Mrs. Martha Hall, and then turned the gun on himself. He declared the case was one of murder and suicide.

The double killing took place in Mrs. Hall's apartment. Police said she is separated from her soldier husband, recently returned from overseas.

It is estimated that during the first year of the Gold Rush, more than 100,000 persons flocked to California.

GOD'S CLOUDS

There is no phenomenon in Nature so poetic and soul-stirring as God's clouds. Never has there been a day when they were exactly the same. And they paint a picture that is different in every part of the world.

Never shall I forget those that forever bathed the mountain tops in Hawaii. They are the first things that grip you as your ship nears the islands. The bewitching strains of the famous Aloha that you hear, the homes in the distance creeping up the mountain sides, the rolling surf bending to the beautiful sandy shore of Waikiki, Diamond Head—each a thing of almost celestial beauty, but dominating all—those clouds!

Today I sit upon my sun porch in Florida watching the cloud formations as they cast shadows upon the rolling sea—and what a picture of everchanging colors, blues, deep olives, tinted purple, and soft greens. And how vivid is the blue sky in which these clouds romp and play! For hours I have sat in my boat, off the shore of Weskawnack, my summer island home in Nova Scotia, and watched these clouds, and so intimate have they been that I almost have heard them tell their story to me, as indeed they did. For they do have stories—stories that only the spirit of man can translate.

I always wanted to be among the clouds, and so my dream was satisfied when I took my first plane trip and looked out to see nothing but a complete floor of clouds below, like a great carpet of fleecy cotton. Their grandeur, however, was gone. Only from the solid earth is the play of the clouds perfect and soul enrapturing.

Mountains of glory are these clouds at times, bold and beautiful beyond expression, and at other times spread across the sky in feathery formations that look like some rare tapestry. Then again hugging the horizon and extending their wings like a hen hovering her chicks.

But the festive time of the clouds is at early morn and at sundown—when the Sun feeds to them its feast of colors. Then do they outdo themselves, singing their all praise, and their doxology of joy. The whisper of God is in every cloud!

Care With Those Covers
It is timely to warn against carelessness in the use of radiator covers or the makeshift cardboard covers so many drivers use in cold weather, for unless there is sufficient air draft when the engine reaches its normal operating temperature it will tend to overheat.

This may or may not cause loss of anti-freeze, but you can bet that it will interfere with the engine's fuel system to a point where "vapor lock" may develop. Likely the engine will stall and refuse to start until it cools off.

Please Keep 'Em Short
There are so many more inquiries coming along these days I hope you'll co-operate by keeping your letters as short as possible. Of course I know there are some cases where it is necessary to give me the detailed background, but in most instances a short inquiry is all that's needed to provide the facts and symptoms. Be sure to name the make, the year and model, and tell me what service men have already done to the car in an effort to correct the trouble. I'll confess that I am inclined to pick out the short notes first just because the hands of that old clock on the wall go along with their usual speed. The longer letters have to be read during slack periods. And those periods are so few and far between.

Rule on Expansion
How much does coolant expand in the cooling system when it heats up? This will depend on the capacity of the cooling system—an important point to consider if you want to prevent serious losses over the overflow. If the engine has a water capacity of six gallons there will be a lot more expansion than if its capacity is three or four. This means that what appears to be a fairly low level of coolant in the radiator, when the engine is cold, will be a high level when warm. The larger the car, generally speaking, the lower the cold level should be to prevent loss. That is a rule that must be carefully kept in mind when operating two cars of different sizes. If you carry both at the same level you'll probably have trouble with one of them.

Mechanic Joe Speaking:
"One of the unfortunate things about motoring is that when a car owner tries out a tip, or heeds a warning, he so often goes all the way to the opposite extreme. I can give you a very good idea of what I mean by referring to greasing front wheel bearings.

"An owner is told that with modern brakes he should not pack grease into the wheel hub. This would put pressure on the retainers and probably result in forcing some of the grease through to the front brakes. This looks logical to him so he decides not to put any grease at all into the little cap that fits tightly over the hub (not the fancy chrome hub cap). Result is that the hub gets rusty inside. He should leave just enough in the cap to prevent this."

Fun to Be Fooled
Riding to town with a business acquaintance John J. pointed to the motor temperature gauge and surprised the driver by showing that in spite of the very low reading of the thermometer outdoors the engine was headed for higher than normal reading. Of course John was just riding his friend. What happened is likely to happen any cold day. Since the outside air is so frigid the motor thermostat remains closed for a longer period. Thus the water around head and block does rise to a higher temperature, causing the heat indicator to register what seems to be a warning of trouble.

You may not realize it but one of the most likely spots for a power skid is when trying to get up speed for overtaking another car on a crowded road. Here the car is slightly off balance, and if too much power is fed to the rear wheels they will start to slide.

A friend of mine learned something of value when observing the recent wreckage of a car that had gone into a steering skid on a slippery curve. Its driver had found it necessary to slow down while curving but unwisely had tried to cut the front wheels too sharply. Their tires lost traction, causing the car to skid straight off the road. It would have been smarter had the driver steered for the outer side of the curve while braking just enough to prevent the tires from sliding. There would have been just enough room in which to stop.

These Tricky Cars
When the engine starts skipping your first thought is that a spark plug has gone bad or you may settle for a bad valve. But beware these tricky cars! They always try to throw you off your guard. Why not get out and take a look at the exhaust? If there is some black smoke coming out you'll know that the choke valve is sticking in a partially closed position, thus enriching the mixture beyond normal. One owner who suspected a gasket leak around the engine started squirting a little light oil at suspected parts, but foolishly condemned the first gasket that seemed to show up with the characteristic bubbles. He failed to note that the bubbles were stirred up by a cooling fan which on his car is built into the generator.

Occasional demise of a headlight bulb should not be cause for suspecting trouble with the lighting system, but if this becomes a habit by all means check to see if there is excessive voltage. This can be due to an open circuit which results in current building up and then feeding to the lamps suddenly when the circuit is intact again. One thing few motorists consider is the destructive effect of car vibration. This will damage bulbs without voltage being too high. And don't forget that vibration often is due to failure to have the car properly lubricated. Rough riding is particularly tough for bulbs, as well as for their sockets and all electrical connections.

easily when started out on a cold morning is simply because its engine fast idles automatically. This makes the clutch gear and counter gears of the transmission run fast enough to compensate for the dragging effect of stiffened lube in the gearbox. Your old car may or may not have an automatic fast idling feature, but the chances are that such feature has been working for some time. You can always match this by remembering to set the hand control of the throttle for fast idling until the engine warms up and the gear lub is whipped up.

Having Their Troubles
Q I am having a lot of trouble shifting into second gear. Changing to winter grade gear lube has not helped the situation. A service man has checked over the shift linkage to the steering post lever, but everything there seems to be all right. H. L. W.

Lauds Record Of Newsmen Who Covered World War II

By HAL BOYLE

Manila, Jan. 19 (AP)—During the battle for Tunisia a skinny little war correspondent weighing 112 pounds was called on the carpet by a chunky American Headquarters general in Algiers.

"You're little better than a traitor to your country," the general said. The small man's crime was that he had told fully the horrors of battle and their emotional impact on tired, dirty men who carry the brunt of war.

The brass hats who worry about such matters thought this slender, middle-aged writer was hurting American morale. They were wrong. He turned out to be one of the army's best morale builders.

That was Ernie Pyle, killed later covering his fifth campaign in the field.

Mencken Less Than Fair

It comes as something of a surprise now to read less than a year after Pyle went to his grave that Henry Louis Mencken, the oracle of Baltimore, believes correspondents were "A sorry lot" and did a poor job of covering World War II.

(Eds. note: Mencken said, however, that Pyle did a good job on the kind of task he set himself to do.)

Mencken, dean of American intelligentsia, soundly observes that it is "a primary duty of reporters to tell the truth until it becomes dangerous."

But in concluding that "there wasn't much of that," he is less than fair to a good number of able and conscientious newspapermen who lie buried in soldier cemeteries today because they never quit trying to be a good reporter.

Pyle Not Guilty

Mencken says of war correspondents generally that they were "either typewriter-statenmen turning out dope stuff dreamily dreamed up or sentimental human interest scribbles turning out Maudlin stuff about the common soldier easy to get by the censors."

There were "typewriter statemen" among the press corps. Some did write "Maudlin stuff" about the common soldier, although Pyle was not one.

But both at Headquarters and at the front there were many hard-hitting newsmen who wore out their hearts or risked their lives living up to Mencken's own dictum that "Good reporting is an effort to get the truth and tell it, no matter who gets hurt."

They fought capricious censorship throughout the war to give the American public as accurate and as complete a picture of what was going on as could be given within the limits of military security.

They wrote boldly, critically and fully. Not since William Howard Russell of the London Times stirred the world with his uncensored accounts of the Crimean battles has there been more honest war coverage.

A lot of it died under the army's blue pencil, but there was enough got through and it is possible to answer Mencken's complaint that he doesn't "even know yet what generals got licked" in the Battle of the Bulge.

Those of us who were there reported at the time that it was a German by the name of Karl Rudolf Gerd Von Runstedt.

Riding With Russell

a solvent and run around the block carefully. Then drain and refill with fresh winter lube.

Q. In a recent article you mentioned the car's vibration damper as a possible reason for a rough motor. I have checked through the instruction book and find that my car does not have such a damper.—J. B.

A. Perhaps it has one under the fancier name, "harmonic balance." These devices are at the front end of the crankshaft and serve the same purpose.

Q. What would cause wear on just one spot of a front tire? It actually looks as if there is a weak spot on the rubber or that the tire does a bit of pivoting. I am sure there is nothing wrong with the brakes. Also I drive carefully and keep tire pressures up.—D. McB.

A. This is a sign that the tire and its wheel are out of balance statically. That one-spot wear is a sure indication. Have the front wheels balanced for static and dynamic (in motion) unbalance.

Q. I have been troubled with difficulty in starting the engine of my car on cold mornings. Would hot spark plugs help?—W. M. N.

A. Wait a minute. Hot spark plugs are not designed to speed up starting although they will help insure better firing of plugs in engines that are pumping oil. A hot plug is merely one that will work better in a cool running engine, as opposed to a cool plug which is needed where engine runs hot from overwork, speed or high compression.

Mr. Russell will answer questions regarding the care and operation of your car. Just address him at 254 Fern Street, Hartford, Conn., and enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for a personal reply.

Random Thoughts on Pruning

Pruning, like lawn sprinkling, is a typical American habit. Shade tree and ornamental shrub growers and even fruit tree owners often grab their saws or pruning knives and pitch into otherwise normal plants and prune away furiously without a single reason for their action. In most cases this pruning urge is the first evidence that spring is nearing, or perhaps it is a demonstration of self-assertion, like the ferocity of a hibernated animal coming from its winter den. In either case the results are usually tragic.

Which plants need pruning? Why is pruning necessary? Is it an annual requirement? These and numerous other questions demand lucid answers at this time of the year.

First, there are no merits in pruning just for the sake of pruning. In every case, be it tree, shrub or vine, not a twig should be removed without a definite, well planned reason. And only enough wood should be removed to accomplish the specific purpose of pruning. Then the operation should stop. If every would-be pruner would remember this sound advice, less harm would be done when the pruning urge suddenly descends with the first mild days of late winter.

In the case of grape vines, pruning is an operation to reduce the number of shoot-producing buds by cutting back last year's wood (canes). Climbing roses and most bush roses are pruned by a somewhat similar principle.

With small fruit trees there is but one aim in pruning—to control the future shape of the tree. Here it is well to note that fruit trees pruned but little when small come into bearing ahead of trees pruned severely.

All pruning is a dwarfing process. If done while the tree is dormant, more vitality is thrown into the remaining branches; if delayed until after sap begins to rise, valuable stores of nitrogen are cut away and wasted and the remaining buds and twigs will show little additional stimulation. Herein is the soundest reason for late January and early February orchard pruning.

Every fruit tree owner should have a copy of Farmers' Bulletin 1870—Pruning Hardy Fruit Plants. This publication offers many helpful illustrations to indicate proper methods of pruning both young and bearing trees. It can be obtained without charge by writing the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Office of Information, Washington 25, D. C. Please do not request this bulletin from the editor, as he has no copies for free distribution.

Most early flowering shrubs, such as forsythia, lilac, dogwood, pearl-bush, deutzia, several of the spreas and others, should be pruned soon after they bloom, not in late winter. On the other hand, most late flowering shrubs should be pruned before growth starts. These include Rose of Sharon, Buddleia, hydrangeas, almost all the honeysuckles, Smoke Tree and many others.

Every person who has plants to prune has questions to ask on the subject. Many hesitate to ask them because they think the question is too simple and primary. Thus, they go on years and years without obtaining the vital information they need. So, if our readers have any questions on the broad and timely subject of pruning, the editor invites their letters. Do not carry any such handicapping questions into the 1946 growing season.

Acquaintance With Insects

Not only is the beginner faced with a baffling task when he sets out to learn the names and classifications of more than 700,000 kinds of insects, but frequently he is perplexed by primary definitions. For example, the definition of an insect is: A creature having three pairs of legs and one pair of feelers. So the student asks: "If that is a description of an insect, what is a caterpillar?"

Many insects are unknown in the true insect stages of their life cycles—the moth or bug or beetle stages. Or they may be called one thing during the larval (grub or worm) stage and another during the flying or parent stage. The common June Bug or June Beetle is a good example. This insect belongs to the order Coleoptera. From an egg laid by the female beetle there develops a destructive lawn and garden and farm pest—the common white grub. Yet, they are all one—the June Bug being the parent or flying or beetle form, the grub the larval form.

Another example is the green cabbage worm. The dainty parent miller belongs to the order Lepidoptera. Many persons recognize the flying form as a "butterfly." Yet the larva form is the dreaded cabbage worm. And another from the order Lepidoptera is the corn earworm, also called tomato worm and cotton bollworm. The parent or true insect form is a fawn-colored moth, perhaps rightly charged with being Garden Enemy No. 1.

Thousands of persons confuse the house-destroying termite with ants, calling the parent forms "flying ants," or "white ants." However, ants belong to the order Hymenoptera, along with honeybees, wasps, bumblebees and sawflies, while wood-eating termites belong to the order Isoptera.

Most entomologists agree there are 25 orders of insects, although some orders are rare and unimportant. Then too, some authorities place the Homoptera as a sub-order of Hemiptera. But all orders are divided into hundreds of families and the families in turn are divided into thousands of genera, and these into species. One example is given—the melon aphid. This pest belongs to the order Homoptera; the family is Aphididae; the genus is Aphis; the species is gossypii. Thus, the melon aphid is properly called Aphis gossypii. This name distinguishes it from all the other thousands of aphids.

"Such names are silly," the beginner may say. But let us turn to an important distinction served by these scientific terms. One species of mosquito carries the yellow fever; another here in this part of the country causes no more harm than to invade bedrooms and disturb sleepers. The two mosquitoes look alike; both breed in stagnant water; the female of each is the biter. How can they be set apart, named and classified?

All mosquitoes belong to the order diptera. The species which carries yellow fever is Aedes aegypti; the common house mosquito is Culex pipiens. Thus the two are not only different species, they belong to different genera. But in the universal language of the entomologist Aedes aegypti means danger, regardless of national boundaries or tongues, while Culex pipiens merely calls for oil of citronella.

With insects playing major parts in modern life, farmers, orchardists and gardeners can no longer remain satisfied with the generalities of "insect" or "bug." It is time to begin calling names.

Mrs. Laura Cense has gone to Philadelphia where she will spend some time at the home of her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown, during the hospitalization of Mrs. Borwin is the former Edna Culp, of Adams county. Oliver Sloan has gone to York where he will spend a week as the guest of his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sloan. Martin Melhorn announces the marriage of his daughter, Ethel R., to Robert W. Etzler formerly of Hanover, at Silver Run, Md., December 20, by the Rev. A. Shenberg. The groom, a veteran of nine years' service in the army, has re-enlisted for three years. The young couple will take up house-keeping at Cashtown in the Hossler property this week.

HERE'S WHY you'll want the
B. F. Goodrich Silvertown

OUTWEARS PREWAR TIRES!

It has been proved. More than 2,000 tests and nearly 17,000,000 miles of the toughest kind of road service showed that this new B. F. Goodrich Silvertown will Outwear Prewar natural rubber tires.

New, better rubber. B. F. Goodrich has developed a rubber that's far better than ordinary synthetics. It helps the new Silvertown wear better and run cooler. It has greater resistance to cracking—and actually stands bruising and damage from accidents better.

Tire body 35% stronger. An entirely new, stronger cord is used, more of these cords are used in the top ply, an extra shock-absorbing breaker strip is included. The result: a body that is 35% stronger for additional resistance to bruises, extra blowout protection.

Flatter tread covers more ground. Called the "road level" tread, it puts more rubber on the road, permits all the tread to share the wear. Result: a further increase in mileage, less scuffing, better distribution of weight, better traction, more safety on the turns.

Plus 3 years' EXTRA experience. Three years before any other manufacturer, B. F. Goodrich sold tires containing synthetic rubber to American car owners. The extra know-how piled up in these years is reflected in the new B. F. Goodrich Silvertown.

WEDNESDAY
Sunset Carson Peggy Stewart
"ROUGH RIDERS OF CHEYENNE"
Thril-created by Otto Preminger, the man who brought "Laura" to the screen, and acclaimed as being even greater in dramatic excitement and suspense, 20th Century-Fox's new hit, "Fallen Angel," starring Alice Faye, Dana Andrews and Linda Darnell, opens Monday at the Majestic theatre.

"Fallen Angel," a gripping drama of desire and murder, presents Alice Faye in her first momentous dramatic role. Dana Andrews plays a hard-boiled "confidence" man in a more desperate man-and-woman hunt, while Linda Darnell is seen in a role even more fascinating than the one that brought her such acclaim in "Hangover Square."

THURSDAY
In addition to the action of the story which is fast, the color throughout this fine story of the Canadian Northwest Mounted, as they try to solve, and of course do —the mysterious shooting at settlers —is really breath-taking.

"Northwest Trail," produced by Action Pictures and coming to the Majestic theatre Thursday, is headed by a cast including John Littel, Joan Woodbury, Bob Steele, Madge Bellamy, Poodles Hanford and Raymond Hatton.

FRIDAY, SATURDAY

Adventure and romance among the freebooters of the 17th century form the dual theme of "The Spanish Main." RKO Radio's exciting technicolor spectacle which stars Paul Henreid, Maureen O'Hara and Walter Slezak.

Henreid is cast as a peaceful Dutch navigator who turns pirate to avenge himself on the Spaniards for having enslaved his crew, and Miss O'Hara portrays a proud Spanish lady who is the intended bride of Slezak, the brutal Governor of Spain's dominions in the New World.

The buccaneer interferes with this plan by capturing the vessel carrying the lady and marrying her himself to spite the Governor.

POLICY PASSES
FIRST UNO TEST

London, Jan. 19 (AP)—The "b power" plan to place the propos atomic energy commission, direct under the United Nations securit without opposition.

The test came when Paul-Hen Spaak, president of the general as providing that the atomic contr proposal should go to the assembly security committee without discus sion on the floor.

Spaak asked if anyone wanted t say anything, but not a word w spoken. He promptly declared th report accepted.

Committee To Meet

assembly is headed by Dmitri Mar

A committee meeting is expecte to be held Monday.

Prime Minister Peter Fraser of Ne
Zealand yesterday contended th that atomic commission should under the direction of the 51-natio ration security council, but he di not oppose today's move.
